

Who We Are: Griefwalk was born out of the desire to care for the brokenhearted; those who are grieving and mourning over life's losses. In a world that is often grief avoidant, we want to offer a safe place to find understanding and hope, care and compassion on the grief journey. We truly believe that we can all experience healing from life's losses and that the work of healing is done better with another: a companion who understands and provides a compassionate and open heart: a place of refuge where healing can be supported.

Serving with Griefwalk: Without the commitment of our volunteers we would not be able to provide the programs and services we do. We need volunteers to help with our support groups, companionship, annual events and fundraisers. If you are passionate about helping people find healing, we'd love to have you partner with us.
